Great Interest Centered In Approaching Civic Meeting

Much interest is being centered in Friday night's meeting of the Board of Trade, not alone owing to the fact that plans will be outlined for the banquet and the closing up of the year's business for 1915, but on account of a very interesting general program that has been arranged for.

The great problem of "Buy at Home" will be discussed. Papers will be read on "Buy at Home" and "Why we Buy away From Home" and the meeting will resolve itself into a discussion of the great question which has a part in making Monessen a better town. It will be interesting to every person to hear the several angles from which this subject will be dealt with and to know that the meeting is one where every person who has a word to say can speak pointedly and fearlessly and without offending the other fellow.

The "Buy at Home" question is being discussed throughout the whole nation in almost every small community and civic bodies everywhere are trying to awaken civic pride sufficient to build up the home community. Therefore the question is a timely one for the Board of Trade and it will be discussed with a view to building up the commercial field here and demonstrating to the workingman that if his money is spent here in Monessen that he will receive beneficial results.

The annual banquet this year will be planned on a broader plane than ever before. Speakers of national reputation will be here and address the meeting with a view to creating a greater interest in the excellent work that is being done. Be at the meeting Friday evening and join the great army of boosters now making personal sacrifices to make Monessen a better as well as a bigger town.

Barons In Hot Water

"Thou Shalt Not Steal," is one of God's commandments and man has embodied it in the law of the land. It must be obeyed. The water barrons in Greensburg are just now trying to explain that they haven't been stealing the people's money, and they are having a hard time of it. They will get their punishment somewhere, sometime.

A New Kensington man is lodged in the Greensburg jail for stealing a pint of milk. It is believed he will be punished severely. The costs in the case are already $24.00, and the technicalities of the law are not nearly satisfied.

There is nothing in the commandment which justifies a man stealing anything, no matter how small. It really seems there should have been a clause added "except for the purpose of sustaining life."

Hotel Destroyed

The Kissell's Springs Hotel, situated five miles north-east of Ligonier, one of the popular summer resorts of the Ligonier valley, burned to the ground with all its contents yesterday afternoon with a loss estimated at $15,000, on which there was $5,000 insurance. The fire which originated on the third floor, was likely caused by a defective flue. The entire upper part of the hotel was on fire when discovered about 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Ligonier was called over the 'phone for assistance and responded.

Several automobile loads of men were taken out as soon as possible and they helped in saving part of the contents on the first floor and also near-by buildings. The building burned with a terrible hot fire consuming everything that was combustible. It was a complete clean-up, as everything was dry and with a strong wind it burned like a tinder-box.

It is a heavy loss, not only to Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Kissell, but the entire community will feel a loss in the destruction of this valuable hotel.

Cample Confesses

Louis Cample, charged with the murder of John Gaitoe at California Monday evening is now in the Washington county jail thinking over the affair. A preliminary hearing was given him in California Tuesday and he was held.

Cample readily admitted his connection with the affair it is said, while in the station at Charleroi Monday evening awaiting a train for California. He had been apprehended on the P. & L. E. train at Monessen and Constable H. B. Lake of California came here to get him, returning by way of Charleroi.

To Constable Lake and Policeman Gus. Brickner of Cnarelroi, Cample talked quite freely. He related that he and Gaitoe had had words between them on Monday evening, because Gaitoe said things he didn't like about his wife, who is now in Europe. His opinion was that Gaitoe had a gun in his pocket. Cample maintained they drew apart, and that after considerable parley, he threw down his cap in front of him. "Come over that and I'll kill you," he is repeated as having said to Gaitoe. The latter crossed the dead line, and a few minutes later he was picked up mortally wounded.

Cample took his time about getting away, it seems, and was not especially particular about escaping. He said he was on his way to Pittsburgh when caught.

Big Game Here

Great interest is being manifested in the football game to be staged at Page park Saturday afternoon between two local teams, the Crescents and Scholastics. The two teams have represented this city on the gridiron this season nad having defeated all other aggregations in their class in the valley, both claim the championship and this game was scheduled to settle the controversy.

The Scholastics are probably the lighter team and are considered the fastest bunch of players in this end of the state. Headed by Heinie Speigelberg, the sensational end, they expect to win out in the contest. The Crescents have had a great season and in their lineup are included quite a number of former stars on the gridiron as well as several promising youths who will put forth every effort to give the championship to that aggregation.

The game will be called at 4 o'clock in order that those attending the High school at Charleroi may attend. The officials have been chosen and arrangements have been made to handle a monster crowd. A portion of the gate receipts will be donated to Lawrence McCreary, the Scholastic fullback, who is now in the Memorial hospital at Monongahela, having been injured in the game with McKeesport last Saturday.

Elks Celebrated Their Annual "Roundup" Here

Far more of a success than had even been contemplated by the officers of the local lodge of Elks was the "Roundup" held last night in commemoration of the close of the first years' possession of the new home of the lodge on Seventh street, dedicated just one year ago.

It was decided to celebrate this event by calling together as nearly as possible all members of the local lodge as well as members of neighboring lodges. And the response was a hearty one. The lodges of the valley, Donora, Charleroi and on up the river as well as West Newton responded gallantly and the lodge room was taxed to its capacity to accommodate the guests.

Early in the evening the lodge work was exemplified by the initiation of five members. This was done by Grand Lodge officers, assisted by the local team and was presented in a manner both interesting and impressive.

At the conclusion of the business meeting there was a Pig Roast and social session where all members became acquainted. A social time was indulged in and some speeches featured the evening. Music was furnished by an orchestra from Wilmerding. A. M. Hoffstadt, past grand exalted ruler of Georgetown, Ky., was present, and his remarks and his personality added much interest to the affair. Everybody had a good time and the "Roundup" was pronounced a great success.

Narrow Escape

Deputy Sheriff C. F. Copeman had an excitiing experience Tuesday afternoon when his automobile suddenly left the road near the Irwin reservoir of the Westmoreland Water company and went over a bank.

Copeman was not thrown from the machine and escaped injury but the machine was taken to the Irwin garage for repairs.

The exact cause of the accident has not been determined. The car appeared to be running well when in an instant it had turned to the side of the road, run over a ditch and almost hit the fence before the driver was able to regain control.

These Dark Days

These are dark days for the world. The shadow of the war is heavier than ever on all hearts, whatever their sympathies. There is little exultation now even in victories, for we know at what a price of blood and pain every victory is won. But there are many things besides war in the world. Except for our active imaginations, most of us would feel life running on pretty much as usual. There is the same sunshine, the same life-giving air, the same autumn colors in the woods, the same joy in bountiful harvests. There is the same quiet satisfaction of soul that has always come with the fall season, whether in country or city. Here in our American isolation, we can live out our lives in spite of war and rumors of wars. There is need, to be sure, of taking thought for the future, preparing against the time when war may bring home to us the wretchedness that we knew half a century ago and that Europe knows today. But that is a matter of calm decision, not for alarm and fear. We are today the most fortunate nation in the world. There is no reason why we cannot continue so. It is a good time for the nation to take to heart the philosophy that is preached so much today to individuals—the philosophy of confidence, of optimism, of positive thought. It is right and proper that we should feel the woes of Europe, and it is our duty to alleviate them all we can. But it is wrong to let those woes weigh on our spirits until we lose our own buoyancy and poise. It is better to regard the war as a doctor or a nurse regards sickness—as something to be cured, whose cure can be effected not through outbursts of sentimentalism but through intelligent and cheerful service.

The Cigarette Law

Louisiana newspaper editors are deploring the failure of their state to enforce a law which prohibits the sale of cigarettes to minors. The law is a drastic one, and provides that anyone selling or giving away cigarettes or tobacco to minors shall be heavily fined. Despite this prohibition, however, many boys, young men and women in Louisiana have acquired the smoking habit, and apparently have no difficulty in getting all the cigarettes or tobacco they desire. The editor of the Southern Vindicator, Hammond, La., believes the prohibition law is bad for the reason that it has not been enforced, and now, that an effort is being made to enforce it, it leaves only two ways open to smokers to get their cigarettes; to buy them from a man of legal age, or to steal them. "You can't say to a boy," says the Vindicator, "in a dictatorial manner, 'Thou shalt not smoke' and think he will obey, especially if he has been smoking two or three years. But you can talk and plead with him to give it up, and he will, in all probability, try to quit. Some succeed; the majority fail. If more pleading and urging were done, at home and at school, instead of using the imperative, dictatorial 'Thou shalt not,' there would be less cigarette smoking, less wayward, vicious boys to contend with, less need of juvenile courts and reform schools and less criminals in the future, in this state and in the United States, without resorting to the law prohibiting the sale of cigarettes to minors."

The Broken Coin

A Story of Mystery and Adventure

By EMERSON HOUGH

From the Scenario by Grace Cunard

(Copyright, 1915, By Wright A. Patterson)

Novelized From the Motion Picture Drama of the Same Name. Produced by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company.

SYNOPSIS.

Kitty Gray, newspaper woman, finds in a curio shop half of a broken coin, the mutilated inscription on which arouses her curiosity and leads her, at the order of her managing editor to go to the principality of Gretzhoffen to piece out the story suggested by the inscription She is followed, and on arrival in Gretzhoffen her adventures while chasing the secret of the broken coin begin

TWENTIETH INSTALLMENT

CHAPTER LXX.

The Broken Treaty.

In the palace of Gretzhoffen, King Michael's friends and courtiers, King Michael's officials, at last began slowly to recover from the period of dissipation into which they had plunged as an expression of their relief from the armed menace so recently at their walls. There is a limit to human possibilities in joy, in grief, in exaltation of any kind, even alcoholic. King Michael and his court ceased to drink because they could drink no more—the wine cup had ceased to furnish any fillip to their besotted brains.

Alone among all these others the prime minister of Gretzhoffen retained somewhat of his wits. Perhaps a stout heredity made him more impervious to the inroads of excess, or perhaps he had certain ambitions of his own which cannily suggested to him that it were better to remain in possession of all his faculties At least he was the first to call a halt in the carouse and to take some account of events past and future

He looked about him at the wreck which had been wrought in the palace by its inmates—wellnigh as complete as that lately done by its enemies—looked at the stained rugs—the broken furniture, the disordered tables. His gaze passed by all this to rest upon the stupefied guests, of whom be now proceeded to make quick clearance

Michael himself made no protest at this, for he knew little of what went on about him. On his mind still rested the obsession that he was celebrating a great victory of the Gretzhoffen arms and the Gretzhoffen diplomacy To him, therefore, the prime minister now addressed himself in the hope of some partial restoration of order, some semblance of a government. Always he missed the strong mind and the strong arms of Count Frederick now so mysteriously disappeared

Across the narrow neutral lands which divided these two kingdoms yonder in the capital of Grahoffen, a quite different state of affairs held place. No dissipation for old Cortislaw, and no celebration for any victory not actually in hand. Cortislaw planned war. As for his pledged word in the armistice and the later treaty, he had long since cast to the winds all this as a scrap of paper carrying no value whatever. Cortislaw signed treaties only to get something afterward He had signed this one merely as a temporary expedient to extricate himself from a dangerous situation. That being done, the world began all over again for Cortislaw.

In due time Sachio returned from his bootless search in the vaults below the Gretzhoffen palace He was full of apprehension, but none the less must face his sovereign.

"Your majesty," he began, when at length that dreaded interview was no longer to be evaded. He hesitated, and as he did so his monarch guessed his news was none too good.

"Well, well, Sachio, what is it that my majesty is to hear?' demanded Cortislaw. "More bad news? You have not won the secret—you have lost our last opportunity?"

"Sire, it is true! Thus far I have failed. But still—"

"You ask more time! Do you think time is as inexhaustible as a river? Let me tell you, it passes, with our hopes, with wings Time—more time? —that is what you cannot have!"

"But, your majesty—"

"Away with you, Sachio! I have parleyed with you for the last time. If I did not need you as an officer, your head indeed should hang on our gates as a warning to other failures."

"How can I serve your majesty?" asked Sachio humbly, glad enough to feel his head safe on his shoulders for yet another hour.

"Call out our army! Mobilize at once to the last man! See that the guns are ready with full ammunition trains. Call in the officers at once See to it also that the ships are ready. We will attack at once by land and sea. Get you at once to the department of our navy, when you have finished your orders for the land forces We must move at once."

"Whither, your majesty?"

"Where else, if not against Gretzhoffen? If you could not find their secret at your leisure, I will blow down their towers and look among the ruins myself for whatever secrets they may hold. The gods of my ancestors would not let them rest in their graves if I accepted this situation as it rests for us today."

A certain relief came to the soul of Sachio as he heard these words He was a soldier, and he reasoned that now in the opportunity for arms he might win back something of his lost favor.

"It is well, your majesty," said he "I shall carry your word at once to all the different departments Your men are but waiting to follow you Success will be easy for us now, for we know all their defenses now as well as our own We shall win!"

"Yes," said Cortislaw, "we shall win, if it costs the life of every man, woman and child of this kingdom. I take charge now myself and trust no more boasters like certain advisers I could name I grant you your place in your regiment, once more, Sachio. See if you can fail in that! If your men give back, I'll have my own guns of the guard behind them to blow them off the earth."

"Be not too hard upon me, your majesty! I admit my error in allowing that young girl to leave our shores—she could have told us the secret had she liked—all the secret of the Gretzhoffen coin. But we shall win yet, though at greater cost."

"You had your chance, Sachio You did not handle the woman Well, I thought you knew more"

"To handle a woman, your majesty," said Sachio—"who ever knew enough for that?" I confess my fault and stand ready to pay my share of the added cost True, we should have kept her until we had all she knew. 'Tis doubtful if she ever sees our shores again. We may see the face of some American admiral—see their battleships before our port—but as for her—never"

"It is enough," said Cortislaw "We march. We advance no more clinging to woman's skirts It is our guidons now shall lead us to their city's secrets"

CHAPTER LXXI.

The Rescue.

Those whose disappearance had made such havoc in the plans of a principality now likewise were upon the point of certain changes in their own plans—and counted that any change must be for the better.

"Look!" said Kitty as they stood at the crest of the cliff gazing out over the white-topped waves toward the nodding sails of the rapidly-advancing craft 'A two-master, under heavy sail Auxiliary, no doubt What can she be?"

"It is what I also would ask," said Count Frederick at her side studying the craft as intently. "Whatever it be, it is our only hope See, she seems to have the look of a yacht. Watch her bows as they rise and see how her spars rake back. A yacht—but whose, and what nationality?"

"There comes their flag," said Kitty, "British! Well, I wish it were the flag of my own country, but better that than none."

"We shall be safe enough under the Union Jack," said Frederick. "I count on good treatment when they find out who we are."

She turned to him with a curious look upon her face.

"Say rather when they find out who you are, Count Frederick," said she "You are a nobleman, I am an unknown American girl, cast away without a friend on earth."

He smiled at her as though amused. "An American girl who has had place in the plans of two kingdoms. Perhaps you may not always remain so unknown, if it comes to that."

"Look!" Once more was her reply as she pointed to the boat.

A puff of smoke came from the bow of the yacht, followed presently by the dull boom of the small cannon mounted there.

"They see our signal," said Count Frederick. "Yes, she'll round to and send in a boat, no doubt." And indeed such proved to be the plans of the little vessel.

There were other results of the cannon shot which might not have been suspected. The natives, scattered here and there along the beach, in the forest, or in their village, were seized with a sudden terror of what they imagined to be a new enemy As fast as they could they scuttled for shelter in the woods or in the caverns that lay below the hills, the greater number finding refuge in the latter hiding places. Of these, some made their way in their terror quite through the series of caverns until at length they emerged at the crest of the cliff by a way of the passage which had brought Frederick and Kitty there at an earlier time.

These found the summit of the rock already occupied. The two strangers who had caused all the turmoil in the village stood at the summit looking out at the sea, and waving signals to the incoming vessel For an instant the natives stood irresolute, but it was not for long. They identified these two white strangers, whoever or whatever they might be, alike with these past disturbances and these new terrors. Whereupon with savage shouts they once more fell upon the unfortunates and made them prisoners again.

To the left, across a bare ledge of rock which showed no trace of it, there led a path whose presence Frederick had not suspected. It was down this new passageway that the natives now led Kitty and Count Frederick. They passed down a steep declivity covered with trees and at length found their way to the lower beach, where after a time they were joined by others who cautiously had emerged from their hiding places. It plainly was the purpose of all these now to complete the sacrifice which had been arrested by the escape of the victim a few days ago. They inflicted preliminary indignities upon them, at least, whether with the intention of hurrying them to the sacrificial fire, or of obliging them to interpose betwen the natives and these new invaders—who, as now all could see, also were white people and hence to be dreaded.

about christmas

WE KNOW that wherever a Christmas message falls it awakens a responsive chord. The mere word Christmas brings visions. In our mind's eye we hear the children laughing, the tree agleam in all the splendor of its tinsel and flickering candles, we smell the pungent odor arising from the kitchen as we anticipate the rollicking fun at the Christmas feast, and the quiet evening around the blazing fire when every heart is full of "peace on earth, good will toward men."

But there's a commercial side to Christmas which you must give full attention to.

COMFORTING WORDS

Many a Monessen Household Will Find Them So

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed—to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders, is enough to make any sufferer grateful. The following advice of one who has suffered will prove comforting words to hundreds of Monessen readers.

Mrs. Ida Coleman, 311 Sixth St., Monessen, says: "I was troubled by a constant backache and in the morning especially when I stooped to put on my shoes, I found it hard to straighten Sharp pains took my breath away. I felt tired all the time and had dizzy spells and hot flashes. My head ached. I doctored for a long time but didn't get much good and finally I used Doan's Kidney Pills which I got at Kirk's drug store. They gave me great relief and after I had taken the second box, the trouble disappeared I haven't had any cause for complaint since. Others of the family are now using Doan's Kidney Pills and consider them the best kidney medicine on the market."

HOME OF THE PIPE ORGAN

Our Program for This Week Surpasses all the Previous.

THURSDAY—Now look out. Never in the history of the moving picture world has there ever appeared on any screen, any picture more thrilling, more stupendous or more expensive. It cost $500,000. We said the carpenters alone got one hundred and seventeen thousand dollars $117,000 and not $11,700 as by a mistake of the printer was advertised in yesterday's Daily Independent.

"The Campbells are Coming" is the famous Broadway Universal feature with the brilliant stars Francis Ford and Grace Cunard acting in the thrilling serial picture "The Broken Coin." "The Campbells are Coming" is the greatest military spectacle of the year in photo play, with a cast of 25,000 people. A gigantic and wonderful presentation of the Relief of Lucknow, India, 1857.

FRIDAY—Special —The Quality Picture Corporation through the Metro Picture Co. presents the sovereign of screen stars Francis X. Bushman and Marguerite Snow in an admirable vehicle, "The Second Command." Francis X. Bushman and Marguerite Snow are so well known and so famous that further advertising would be considered useless. It is a great feature.

SATURDAY—One of the famous 101 Bison features, "Mettle of Jerry McGuire," and our famous serial picture "The Diamond from the Sky" Now you remember that in addition to these big features of dramas, we have every one of famous comedies of famous companies.

Monday—One Nestor L KO.
Tuesday—One of Imp's.
Wednesday—One of L KO in two reels with Billie Ritchie.
Thursday —One Powers and one Nestor comedy
Friday—Charles Chaplin.
Saturday—One of Joker and one of L Ko comedies.

SYNOPSIS OF OUR WONDERFUL SERIALS THIS WEEK

THURSDAY—The most astonishing, the most wonderul, the greatest military spectacle of the year, "The Campbells are Coming," a Universal feature featuring the well known stars, Grace Cunard and Francis Ford. One of the most, if it is not the only one, expensive production on the market. A matchless romantic war drama that stirs your every emotion. Remember it, Thursday and do not forget Friday that Quality Picture Corporation through the Metro Co. present at the Olympic the sovereign of screen stars, Francis X. Bushman and the exquisite artist, Marguerite Snow in an admirable vehicle "The Second Comman in five parts. Useles to say very much about Francis X. Bushman and Marguerite Snow. They are second to none on the moving picture stage. Miles and miles the moving picture fans are traveling only to see these famous stage stars.

For SATURDAY—There is no use to say anything further, only to tell you that for our special we have "Mettle of Jery McGuire, a drama of the famous Bison sompany 101 ranch, the 26th episode of "The Diamond From the Sky" and on the top of this three comedies,—"His Twentieth Century Susie," a Joker production; "Cupid and the Scrub Lady" one of L KO's and last but not least Charles Chaplin in a comedy. You dare not miss such a week of offerings at the Olympic.

Officials Selected

Officials have been selected for the championship High school football game Saturday afternoon between Monessen and Charleroi High schools on Charleroi grounds. They will be Pittsburgh, a University of Pennsylvania man and one of the central board of officials for big games; umpire —Mertz, at Connellsville; head linesman and time keeper, T. M. Gilland of Donora.

The Saturday game will start at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon. From present indications it will be one of the hottest either team has played this season. Both are preparing for the struggle, getting their various plays in shape. Practically all Charleroi's players are in good shape for the game. Eagye, one of the dependable string men was injured in practice Tuesday, and Capt. Charles Lowesmitter's injured arm has been bothering him. Outside of these every member of the squad is in fine fettle.

Cannot Be Saved

Denver, Col., Nov. 18—"No power on earth can save Joseph Hillstrom. He will be shot next Friday as sure as I am alive today. The second request of President Wilson that his case be reconsidered will make no difference. Neither President Wilson nor anyone else can prevent these people in Utah from putting Hilstrom to death." Attorney O. L. Hilton of counsel for Hillstrom made this statement today. "Hillstrom is a doomed man. The powers that be in Utah have ordained that he shall die and die he will. It may appear strange that even the president of the United States cannot save the man's life, but people living at a distance from Utah cannot possibly understand the influences which are at work there."

Toledo, O., Nov. 18—There's a slight but agile woman in Toledo who isn't afraid to shoot a man dead. She is Mrs. Josephine Bates, 35, secretary of the Toledo Industrial Workers of the World.

Mrs. Bates has been hiking into country regularly for the last two weeks with her rifle and instructor for target practice. She boasts hitting the bull's eye in three out of five shots. She is hoping there will be an opportunity to prove her marksmanship on a man's heart. Not with Cupid's bow and arrow, but a live 32-calibre.

Joe Hill (Hillstrom) I. W. W. poet and song writer, has been convicted of murder and sentenced to be shot in Salt Lake City at sunrise November 19. The I. W. W. says Hill is a victim of capitalist conspiracy; that he has not had a fair trial and that his guilt has not been established. Therefore Toledo local 86. I. W. W. believes that if he must be shot, it is better that he be killed by friends.

The state of Utah will employ five men to shoot Hill. One of the five will aim a gun which is loaded with blank cartridges. None of the five will know whose gun carries the blank.

Each marksman is to receive $50 to shoot Hill and one blank insures them all a free conscience and the unalloyed enjoyment of the money.

Lots were drawn at the I. W. W. meeting and five men, with Mrs. Bates at alternate, were selected to go to Salt Lake and ask the state of Utah to pay them $50 apiece to shoot Joe Hill. Ernest Smith, Rodney Mehling, James Callahan, Jack Leser and Fred Cooney are the five.

The men will "hobo" their way west to save the $250 for the "revolution." They will ask for elimination of blank cartridges and request that every gun be loaded to kill.

Mrs. Bates will not ride "the bumpers" because it would be necessary to discard female garb to avoid legal difficulty.

IMPORTANT AGENCY OF THE NATIONAL TIRE FOR TOWN

A deal has been put through with the International Automobile League of Buffalo, New York, by one of the progressive young business men, Mr. George Phillips, for the sale of the National Tire in Monessen, so well and favorably known throughout the country.

The National Tire received its introduction to the motoring public, through the members of the International Automobile League, an organization of some 70,000 members, scattered throughout the United States and abroad. This organization today with its steadily increasing membership and wonderful purchasing power has come to be the most important organization of its kind in the world, and it is natural that the tryout of the National Tire under all conditions and in all sections of the country by its members has proven a severe test and one which only tires of the highest grade could withstand.

Mr. Phillips is to be congratulated upon the securing of this agency as the National is the accomplishment of the Ideal, from every viewpoint in tire building, ranking as it does with the best tires manufactured, and carrying the standard guarantee of 3,500 miles.

Mr. Phillips proposes to carry a complete stock of all sizes, both in the smooth and non-skid, at Monessen, and will be in a position to take care of every want of motorists at all times. 35-2t
